

Xtreme Length & Enhancing Mascara

by Shannon on August 12th, 2008

Xtreme Lashes, known for their amazing eyelash extensions, also has a mascara meant to be used whether you have extensions or you want to have the look of thicker lashes. I've been wearing their Xtreme Length & Enhancing Mascara for about a week and a half to see if I feel it is any different than what I typically wear.

The cool thing about this mascara is that a brush and lash separator are attached at the top of the tube in an easy to access compartment. As you can tell from this picture, my lashes do look thicker, slightly curled and a little bit longer than usual. It does take several coats to get it just right and the formula doesn't smudge or smear, however, since it's not waterproof if you do cry or get them wet somehow, it runs as typical mascara would.

Mascara Comparisons

by Shannon on August 14th, 2008

My review on Extreme Length & Enhancing Mascara got me thinking about which mascara I have reviewed so far has been the best. So I gathered up the pictures and I'd love to hear what you think—which worked best?

I like the way the Raincoat mascara looks best.

I'm surprised you didn't have Imju Fiberwig on your list. While it doesn't do much in the volume/thickening department, it adds amazing length to your lashes, and NEVER smudges. I can't stand waterproof mascara, and this really is a great option. Comes off with a little warm water on a cotton pad. Yes, it's expensive ($22), but worth it IMO.

Actually I have reviewed Imju, but I never took a picture of my lashes with it. I only posted reviews where I had pictures so that you could really see how it worked to compare.

You can find the Imju review by typing it in the search bar in my sidebar. I think I wrote that review last year maybe.

God, I really hate Blinc's Kiss Me Mascara. The tube technology is nice, but not if the mascara doesn't lengthen and add volume! Sorry for the rant! Great post Shannon!

I like how Besame looked on you because it looked natural and not too cakey. And I LOVE how Xtreme Length and Enhancing mascara looked for you- I can actual see some lengthening. Nice pictures.

The extreme length and enhancing mascara does bring length to the eyelashes. I would say this one looks the best.
