

Xtreme Lashes releases new lash adhesive

[Tue 10/11/2009 03:51:12]

Xtreme Lashes has released a new lash adhesive, XL-Flex Fusion Adhesive.

The company says the product “features the fusion of flexibility, safety, durability, longevity and a clean, seamless [lash] connection”. It was developed in collaboration with a team of scientists, physicians and lash stylists under the direction of Xtreme Lashes President and Founder, Jo Mousselli.

The adhesive is ideal for all levels of lash stylists and all clients. Its low odour, low fume formula is carbon black-free, solvent- and latex-free.

Louise Weston, Marketing & Creative Director, Xtreme Lashes Australia & New Zealand, said:

“We have been eagerly waiting for the launch of XL-Flex Fusion Adhesive. This adhesive together with the application system and training from Xtreme Lashes is set to revolutionise the industry, minimise reactions, enhance longevity and indeed place eyelash extensions on the ‘Professional Use’ only platform that it strives to be on.”
